KILLER WILL DIE IN PRISON

GUILTY: Stephen Port

By Rudi Abdullah

waltham@yellowad.co.uk

VICTIMS' families cheered as a serial killer was sentenced to life in prison at the Old Bailey for murdering four men and committing a string of sexual offences.

Stephen Port, 41, of Cooke Street, Barking, was found guilty on Wednesday, November 23 of murdering Anthony Walgate, 23, of Golders Green, Gabriel Kovari, 22, who lived with Port at his Barking address, Jack Taylor, 25, of Dagenham and Daniel Whitworth, 21, of Gravesend, by poisoning them with lethal doses of GHB, a medical anaesthetic which can induce mild euphoria.

A jury also found him guilty of four counts of rape, six counts of giving a substance with intent to render a person unconscious and facilitate sexual activity and four counts of assault by penetration in relation to seven other victims.

Jonathan Rees, lead prosecutor, began the sentencing hearing by reading excerpts of statements from families of the deceased. Mr Rees praised the family of Jack Taylor, who attended every day of the trial, calling them "a model of dignity".

The court heard Port met his victims, some of them described as "acutely vulnerable", on gay dating sites and lured them back to his flat before poisoning them with lethal doses of GHB.

In one instance, Port filmed himself having sex with his unconscious victim then showed him the video the morning after.

He disposed of three of his victims by taking their bodies to Barking Abbey churchyard, placing GHB in their clothing to make it look like their deaths were self-inflicted.

Mr Justice Openshaw concluded by describing Port as a "highly dangerous individual" who committed murder to "satisfy his lust".

The judge accepted the defence's mitigating plea that Port did not intend to murder his victims, but to render them unconscious so he could have sex with them, but said that Port "must've seen there was a high risk of death" by administering the substance after the death of his first victim Mr Walgate.

He addressed the way in which Port dumped his victims' bodies in Barking Abbey churchyard, saying: "The victims were robbed of their dignity in the way they were disposed of."

Bum wrap as drug dealer gets jail term

A BARKING man has been jailed for five years after he was found to be concealing 25 wraps of class A drugs in his bottom.

Vincent Ojo, 26, of North Street, was arrested after officers from Operation Raptor stopped the Audi hire car in which he was travelling in Beresford Road, Southend, on March 7.

Operation Raptor teams have been created in the north, south and west policing areas in Essex to detect and disrupt gangs who travel to the county to deal drugs and cause violence.

Officers suspected Ojo to be concealing drugs and took him into custody where he was searched.

He refused an x-ray and ultrasound but later admitted concealing the drugs and passed a package containing 18 wraps of heroin and seven of cocaine.

Ojo was charged with one count of possession with intent to supply cocaine and one count of possession with intent to supply heroin.

He pleaded guilty to both offences and was sentenced at Basildon Crown Court on November 25 to five years' imprisonment for each offence to run concurrently.

An order was also made for the drugs to be destroyed and cash relating to his drug dealing activities to be seized under the Proceeds of Crime Act.

PC Ian Patterson, from Operation Raptor South, said: "Vincent Ojo thought he could come to Essex to deal drugs, but was stopped in his tracks after officers stopped the car in which he was a passenger and suspected he may have something to hide."

"Ojo refused medical intervention but eventually admitted concealing the drugs and pleaded guilty to the offences at court. He will now serve a lengthy prison sentence."

Anyone with information about gang activity and drug dealing where they live can call Essex Police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Students doing the business

THREE sets of young entrepreneurs have won the chance to run their own businesses on Barking and Dagenham College campus.

A panel of judges chose the creators of CANDI, a sweet shop, Ten/10 Slush, a slushy drinks shop and Deidade, a handmade jewellery business as the winners of the college's Dragons' Den style competition last Wednesday.

Adnan Mahmood, chief entrepreneurial leader at Barking & Dagenham College praised the young entrepreneurs for their spirit and acumen.

"The winning teams that won the pop-up shop opportunity all presented sound business plans and a presentation that was pitch perfect. Observing the winning groups and the looks on their faces was priceless; they were over the moon and eager to get their ventures off the ground."

The winners will now also the chance to use the shop space. The groups' first sales opportunity will be during the college's annual Christmas Market, which takes place at the Rush Green campus on Thursday December 8 from 3.30pm to 7pm.

Eighteen students pitched their ideas to the panel during Global Enterprise Week in a bid to convince them that their business proposals were viable.

Serial killer prompts police 'web' warning

POLICE and LGBT charities have warned people across East London to be careful about who they meet via dating websites and phone apps, following the conviction of serial killer Stephen Port.

Port, 41, of Cooke Street, Barking, was jailed on Friday for the drugging, sexually abusing and killing of four men, then dumping their bodies.

Police have directed people to advice offered by LGBT charity Galop, which states: "People can lie. People may not be who they say there are and you won't know for sure until you meet them. Chat as much as you can to someone before meeting. Find out as much as you can. If they are reluctant to give any info, think carefully about them."

Commander Cundy said: "Throughout this case we have worked very closely with the LGBT community and liaised with key representatives, including the LGBT Independent Advisory Group, to take their advice and guidance.

"We have held community meetings and worked alongside organisations such as anti-violence charity Galop to issue safety advice for those who use online dating sites and apps, or are affected by the issues raised."

Police said they believed Port may have abused more men. They urged anybody with information to call in 'the strictest confidence' by dialling 0208 358 0400, or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111. Alternatively, they can contact Galop by dialling 0207 704 2040 or visiting www.galop.org.uk.

IPCC probes Met investigation of Stephen Port

SEVENTEEN Met Police officers are under investigation over their handling of four murders committed by serial killer Stephen Port.

The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) confirmed last week that it is probing 'concerns regarding the initial investigations into the men's deaths'.

Commander Stuart Cundy said the Met Police had written to apologise to the families of all four victims, admitting: "The trial did identify potentially missed opportunities to catch Port sooner."

Seven officers are under investigation for alleged gross misconduct and 10 more for misconduct.

Campaigners have questioned why police did not connect the deaths sooner. All four victims had links to Port and showed signs of having been dragged to where they were discovered. Port was later convicted of perverting the course of justice by lying to police about his dealings with Walgate. He was jailed for eight months – but was not prosecuted over the death itself.

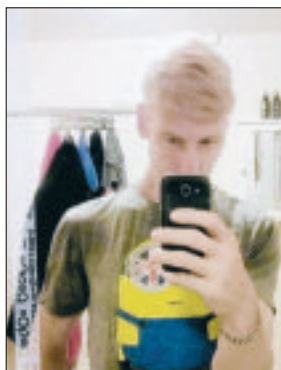

Gay rights campaigner Peter Tatchell said 'failures' by investigators were 'astonishing', adding: "The police let Stephen Port slip through their fingers."

IPCC commissioner Cindy Butts said: "It is important we establish whether the police response to the deaths of all four men was thorough and appropriate in the circumstances, including whether discrimination played any part in the actions and decisions."

Commander Stuart Cundy said officers had been provided with new guidance.

Anybody with information can call the IPCC on 0800 151 0021.

JUST GIVING: Sam Faiers called on the public to support the charity's Christmas appeal

The only way is Havens House

SAM FAIERS, former star of ITV2's The Only Way is Essex, gave her support to a Redbridge charity's Christmas appeal on Tuesday.

The reality TV star visited Haven House Children's Hospice on 'Giving Tuesday' and urged her fans to lend their support to the charity's Christmas appeal, which features Keely Johnson from Romford.

Mike Palfreman, chief executive of Haven House, said: "Sam is an incredible supporter of our hospice and has done so much for us in the past year. She opened our new charity shop in Romford and is now helping to raise awareness of our vitally important Christmas appeal.

"To continue to support families like Keeley and Logan, we need the public to dig deep this festival season and make a donation to our charity."

Ms Johnson and her son Logan are supported by the hospice after she lost her seven-month-old daughter Evelyn to Leigh Syndrome in 2014.

To read about Keeley, how Haven House supports her and her family and to make a donation, call 020 8498 5841 or visit www.havenhouse.org.uk/christmasappeal

New partnership for Woodford charity

HAVEN House Children's Hospice has launched a new partnership with the Bank of England which will see employees fundraise on behalf of the charity.

The Woodford charity was nominated by Allison Curtiss, member of the bank's Notes

Directorate, because of its support for local families and links to Winston Churchill, who was MP for the constituency.

She said: "I nominated Haven House Children's Hospice as it is a very worthy charity, located close to the bank's site in Debden.

"Given the recent launch of the new five pound note, featuring Sir Winston Churchill, I felt it would be particularly poignant for the bank to support a charity that is so close to its note production site and also in Churchill's former constituency."

Hospital radio studio reopens

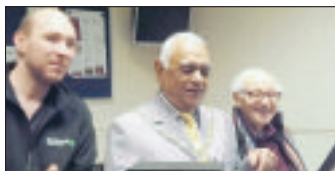

BEDROCK Radio returned to Goodmayes Hospital on Sunday following a huge refurbishment project by volunteers with support from members of staff from the North East London Foundation Trust.

The station ceased broadcasting there in November 2015 after a radiator leak in the studio destroyed equipment.

Cllr Gurdial Bhamra, mayor of Redbridge, cut the ribbon to officially reopen the studio.

Lee Howe, an engineer for the station, said: "The hard work and the long hours put into rebuilding the studio are finally paying off. It's great to see the studios being used. I hope the patients and staff will enjoy the shows."

Goodmayes Hospital Radio Association previously ran the station as The Jumbo Sound.

Honours for our sporting heroes

SPORTING heroes from Waltham Forest were recognised for their achievements at the council's annual sports awards ceremony.

Hundreds of people gathered at Walthamstow Assembly Hall to watch the borough's sporting stars acknowledged across 16 categories.

Cllr Ahsan Khan, cabinet member for health and wellbeing, said: "This year's sports awards was the biggest we've had – and with more than 200 individuals, teams and organisations nominated, the judging panel had a real challenge on their hands.

"A huge range of sporting activities and events were represented, from cross-county running to trampolining, and skating to martial arts. It just goes to show the strength, success and sheer variety of sporting opportunities in Waltham Forest."

Run some press ads.

The effectiveness consultancy Benchmarking have analysed what happens when companies include press advertising in their media mix.

They looked at 500 econometric models, across a five-year period and discovered that adding newspapers dramatically increases the return on investment of other media.

Over half were service companies who saw the effectiveness of their TV advertising double, ROI of their overall campaigns treble and their online digital display enjoy a four-fold increase.

Individual categories also saw impressive results.

Automotive campaigns clocked a 70% increase. In travel, effectiveness trebled. In retail it leapt by 2.8 times. And most remarkable of all, in the financial category, Benchmarking uncovered an increase of 5.7 times.

So, whatever business you are in, you should be in the newspapers.
